FAMILY LAW: CHILDREN'S LAW

Amanda has always been interested in the rights of children in the context of legal proceedings and in the wider society. Amanda is regularly instructed to act for parents, grandparents, kinship-carers, competent children and children's guardians in complex care cases.

Cases have involved child and parent fatalities, catastrophic injuries to a child, non-accidental head injuries, poisoning, including a number of cases of salt poisoning, FII, re-litigation of cases involving historical abuse, child sexual abuse, including intergenerational, inter-sibling, maternal abuse, internet exploitation and ritualistic sexual abuse, allegations of witchcraft, radicalisation cases, as well as cases of neglect.

In addition, Amanda is often instructed in cases under the inherent jurisdiction involving hospital trusts where medical treatment and/or end of life treatment and care is in issue. In one notable case, (Re AB(A child) [2018] EWFC 3), the LA care plan would have resulted in the child's life coming to an end many years after the conclusion of proceedings - the child is still alive and living with his parents.

Amanda is a passionate advocate for the rights of children and the most vulnerable parents in society. She has a wealth of experience in representing parents and children who have been victims of trauma, and parents & children with mental health difficulties and learning disabilities. She also frequently acts for Gillick competent teenagers in care proceedings. Amanda has developed a trauma-informed approach to her work, along with innovative practices to assist vulnerable clients in negotiating proceedings and the aftermath of proceedings. She regularly provides training in how to best represent vulnerable clients.

Her client care is second to none, always compassionate but focused on achieving the best possible outcome for her client.

Amanda is committed to providing trauma-informed representation to survivors of domestic abuse in private and public law proceedings.

Amanda has taught land law and the law of trusts.

Amanda returned to the Bar and to Garden Court following a period of time as a full-time mother. The charity also worked with teenage mothers and refugee families and their children.

Immediately prior to her return to the Bar Amanda worked as a childcare lawyer for a local authority. This experience has given her invaluable insight into the workings, not only of a local authority but also of the work of a solicitor.

Amanda has been a single mother of three children for many years.
